Senate Republicans Approve Plan That Threatens Ability to Grow Jobs Cherry Opposes Reckless Policy That Jeopardizes School, Public Safety Funding

LANSING—Senator Deb Cherry (D-Burton) opposed a plan approved by Republicans in the Michigan Legislature today that would eliminate the Single Business Tax without offering a plan to replace the revenue.

“This vote is irresponsible and does nothing but put Michigan jobs at risk,” said Cherry. “It will force massive cuts to critical programs, increase individuals’ taxes, and make our state’s tax environment the most unstable in the nation.”

The Senate Republicans appeased their special interests, bolstered their election year agenda, and pulled the legs out from under Michigan’s economy all in one fell swoop with the vote to cut nearly $2 billion that currently funds Michigan’s general fund budget.

The state’s general fund is the main funding source for higher education, prisons, state-funded health care programs, and assistance to local governments for police and fire programs. It is expected that funding for these programs will be reduced, individuals and small businesses will be required to pay more in taxes than they do currently, or some combination of both.

Experts and opinion leaders across the state have expressed great concern that making the cut without any details on how the revenue will be replaced could damage the state’s already fragile economy. Businesses considering locating in the state would not have any information on how or how much they will be required to pay in a replacement tax. This tax plan ambiguity left in the wake of this decision will make it harder to attract and retain major business, all for the benefit of the Republican party’s special interests.
